

Ashley A. Gomez

Ashley A. Gomez is a former student athlete and a dedicated advocate for sport and life equity. Since graduating with her Masters of Business Administration, she has been involved in advocating and providing resources for young girls in under-served communities all around the nation with a non-profit organization. She has now joined Bemidji State University and Northwest Technical College to bring her experience and empower the students to stand alongside her in support of equity and inclusion for all.

Ashley has hosted Title IX activities in Washington, D.C. to bring awareness and fight for gender equality in sports for the 50th anniversary of Title IX. She has also organized sports clinics to encourage young girls and women to continue to be involved in sports with the help of elite athletes.

Ashley A. Gomez (she, her) is a first generation graduate from the Bronx, New York. She has obtained her master of Business Administration in 2021 and her Bachelors in Business Administration with a minor in Logistic and Supply Chain Management in 2020.
